

Research Scientist- New England

A Global producer of coated fine and specialty papers is looking for a Research Scientist for Release Business support.

This position involves all aspects of product development and commercialization related to the release papers business. The successful candidate will have:

- The ability to develop new product design leading to new product innovations
- responsibility for the chemistry of improved product designs for customer processes
- wet end chemistry experience on a paper machine
- must have an advanced degree in Organic Chemistry and experience with radiation cured systems

Interested candidates should send a resume and salary requirements to:
leisa@fpcbBangor.com